BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS,
Friday, September 27.

MILITIA REDUCTION BILL.

Mr. Dundas moved the second reading of the bill for enabling his Majesty to accept the voluntary services of a certain number of the militia.

The bill was then read a second time.

Mr. Dundas then moved that the bill should be committed.

Mr. Nichols said, it was not his intention in addressing the house, to oppose the second reading of the bill, or to object to carrying on the war on the continent. He had always considered this war as productive of the greatest calamities; but if the war was to be continued, he should not oppose any plan for employing the force of the country in such manner as might be deemed the most effectual. There were but two means by which this war was likely to be terminated; one of these means was the good sense of ministers, who would certainly put an end to the war, when they found that it could not be carried on longer with the interest of the country. With regard to the right hon. Secretary who had bro't in this bill, he had always spoken of him with the greatest respect, and had always entertained the highest opinion of his talents as a statesman. Whatever his opinion might be in some points upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer, yet he was far from supposing that the right hon. gentleman would press the continuance of the war when its success was hopeless. But from some gentleman he had heard of Bellum Internicinum. He was however glad to find by something which fell from the right hon. Secretary, that the opinion was abandoned. He had previous to the revolution passed much of his time in France, principally among two classes of men, the Advocates and Œconomists. The object of the latter was the improvement of the agricultural state of France, and for this purpose they wished to destroy the Feudal Tenures. The Abbe Raynal—

The Speaker here interrupted the hon. gentleman and said, having stated his intention not to oppose the bill, these observations could not be relevant.

Mr. Nichols said, his object was to state his reasons for not opposing the bill. He did not mean to oppose the bill nor the continuance of the war upon the continent, if the war was to be continued.

The Secretary of war said, he was placed in a very difficult situation, In answering irregular observations he could not himself be very regular. This was a situation, in which gentlemen were often placed, and perhaps irregular observations were sometimes made with a view that they should not be answered. There was one point to which he begged to avert. It had been stated that he had uttered some sentiments respecting the war, different from those which he had advanced before He was not conscious of having altered his sentiments upon this subject. With respect to the expression Bellum Internicinum, he had mentioned it, in a different sense from that in which it was employed against him. He felt the embarrassment of speaking upon a subject not regularly before the house, and was constantly apprehensive of being interrupted by the speaker, he thought it would be better to wait until he had a regular opportunity of Stating his opinion upon this subject.

Mr. Nichols explained.

The bill was then ordered to be committed on Monday. The order of the day was then read.

The house resolved itself into a committee, to take his majesty's speech into consideration Mr. Bragge in the chair.

Mr. Ftt moved that a supply be granted to his majesty, which was agreeed to.

The house being resumed, Mr. Bragge brought up the resolution, which was agreed to, and the house adjourned till to-morrow.

LONDON, Oct. 8.

The public are now relieved from the state of anxiety occasioned by the non-arrival of dispatches from Holland, advices having been received yesterday evening, from Field Marshal his Royal Highness the Duke of York, with the important intelligence that our brave troops and the Russians, who co-operated with them, gained a signal victory over the Dutch and French on Thursday last, which put our troops in possession of the Lange Dyke, Alkmaar, Bergen, Egmont-op-Hoep, and Egmont-op-Zee. The news was this morning, between eight and nine o'clock, announced to the public by the Park and Tower guns, and published in the London Gazette Extraordinary.

From the contents of the Gazette Extraordinary, and from what we have been enabled to add, it seems unnecessary to observe, that the 2d of October was a day glorious in the highest degree to the British arms, and no less honorable to the commander in chief, and advantageous to the cause which they support: That the result of it ought to inspire us with gratitude towards the two former, and confidence in the latter; and that the total defeat of a French force, equal in number, and with every possible advantage of situation, by a British army, should prove to us how much we have to hope, and our enemies to fear, in our future operations.

SIEYES, President.
LAGARDE, Sec. Gen.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 1.

Gen. Kellermann is at present in this city to take the inspection of the French troops which daily pass through here. The numbers which have lately arrived here on their way to the army are estimated at 10,000 men.

Letter from the Batavian Directory to the President of the first Chamber.

A letter we have received from the administrators of Ouden Yessel, dated Sept. 30th, mentions that an English officer and 12 sailors came to Genemuiden in a barge belonging to Hassel; where the officer declared to the Municipality that he took possession of the place in the name of the Prince of Orange and resisted on the Orange flag being hoisted on the steeple; they cut down the tree of liberty and on the invitation of some of the inhabitants of Zwartsluys they proceeded to that place for the same purpose.

The Departmental administration on receiving information of this, had taken, in concert with the commissioner of the Directory, the necessary measures of safety; and the Col. of the armed citizens, Queyssen, with the chasseurs of Deventer and Haltem, in all about 50 men had marched at day break to Zwartsluys and arrived there so unexpectedly that the English, who had just got into the barge which was come to fetch them, having no time to make use of their cannon, were all taken.

SWABIA, October 3.

It is thought that in a few days the Imperial armies will march forward to occupy their former positions in Switzerland. Gen. Peltrasch, who, has succeeded Hotze, was at St. Gall, Sept. 29, with this troops. [St. Gall is situated 5 miles W. of the lake of Constance, 37 miles N. E. of Zurich, where Massena's head quarters were, and 62 miles N. E. of Lucerne, of which Suworrow is said to be master. Some accounts state that French patroles have advanced from Zurich, to the vicinity of St. Gall, and that Gen. Petrasch was about retreating, in order to join Suwarrow. A part of his troops are said to have passed the Lake of Constance and the Rhine, for that purpose.] The Russian Gen. Korsakow, remains at Eglisau, on the right bank of the Rhine; and French troops in small numbers have passed between him and Patrasch almost to Constance. Suwarrow is expected at Eglisau; and the Archduke is said to be preparing to make an attack on the side of Basle. The French have evacuated Aunheim near Kehl, and the Austrains have taken possession of it. 3000 Frenchmen who were there, crossed the Rhine to Strasburg. The French seem preparing to enter the Brisgaw, [in the circle of Swabia.] It is thought Massena will not dare to advance to assist these operations.

Messena, General in Chief, to the Executive Directory.

Head-Quarters-General, at Zurich, 6 Vendemaire, September twenty-eight,

The two armies, Russian and Austrian, are totally destroyed. The Russians have passed the Thur. We are in pursuit of the remains of the Austrian and Bavarian corps who had joined them, to the number of 8000. The Commander in Chief Hotze, was killed on the field of battle. Their baggage, camp effects, six standards, and more than one hundred pieces of artillery are in our power. The loss of the two armies in killed, wounded, and prisoners, is more than 20,000 men.—Three Russian General ars in our hands. Gen. Suwarrow in person attacked my right I am marching against him.

(Signed) MASSENA.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 3.

Letters from the borders of the Rhine state, that the French troops detached from the Upper Rhine for Batavia, viz. twelve battalions of infantry, one regiment of dragoons, one regiment of mounted chasseurs, a division of flying artillery, and two companies of gunners, have received orders to halt in the neighborhood of Mentz and Worms, until farther orders. The fear of an attack upon Mentz, or a powerful diversion on the Lower Rhine, by one part of the Austrian army, under the archduke, is the reason alledged for this very sudden change of disposition.

The same letters inform us, that above 20,000 trees are cutting down, on the Hundsruck, to be transported to Mentz and Ehrenbreitstein. In all the neighboring departments, requisitions of every kind are made to complete the victualing of those places with 10,000 quintals of wheat, 400 hogsheads of wine, 200 casks of vinegar, and a vast number of other necessaries. Payment is made in bons, which are again received in discharge of the yearly contribution.

FRANKFORT, Oct. 5.

In our neighbourhood, affairs have suddenly taken a different turn. Yesterday the French advanced in great force from Mentz, drove the armed peasants as far as Hattersheim, whom they attacked again early this morning; they were obliged to retreat for want of ammunition. The Imperialists and the troops of the Elector of Mentz were not strong enough to defend the Niddo, and were obliged to retreat across the Mayn. From last night till this afternoon we have heard a violent cannonade. The French have a numerous artillery. A part of the armed peasants and some Imperial artillery retreated through this city.

This afternoon, the French hussars of Chamboran were at the outer gates, and at four o'clock a French trumpeter and an Adjutant General arrived here, and went to the Senate house. It is not known what he demands. Our gates are shut.

This afternoon the new-raised bridge at Griesheim is heavily bombarded; the bridge still stands. The armed peasants have all separated, all but the chasseurs and riflemen; they are said to have six killed and thirty wounded. We are in the utmost consternation here.

PHILADELPHIA,
THURSDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 12.

Juſtum et tenacem propoſiti virum,
Non civium ardor prava jubentium,
Non vultus inſtantis tyranni,
Mente quatit ſolida.———

"Full oft by holy feet our ground is trod,
Of clerks good plenty here you may eſpy,
A little, ſpare and haggard man of God
Is one perhaps you'll mark among the fry;
He has a roguiſh twinkle in his eye—
Which, when obſerv'd, he ſhrinks into his mew,
And, ſtraightway, recollects his piety anew.
Thomſon.

SOME years ſince, a certain Eſſayiſt, who publiſhed his opinions in a village gazette, in the interior of New-Hampſhire, aſſumed the new and perhaps whimſical name of THE LAY PREACHER. Clothed with no clerical authority, or garb, yet willing to diffuſe moral, economical, political and literary ſentiments in a popular and commodious form, he imagined, that, without trenching upon the limits of decorum, he might have leave both of the prieſthood and the public to comment, in the character of a Layman, upon the didactic and biographical parts of the Bible, and yet adhere to "the form of ſound words," and to all the orthodoxy of a a biſhop. The event demonſtrated that the project was not viſionary. No ſtranger to the clergy, in whoſe order he finds many of his beſt and literary friends, he has in no inſtance by them been charged with levity or prophaneneſs; and, with reſpect to popular approbation, he has experienced it in a degree, far beyond either his deſert, or his expectations. He has had the honor to give riſe to a new tribe of weekly eſſayiſts, and has been ſucceſſively followed by an "OCCASIONAL PREACHER," a "MORAL PREACHER," a "GAY PREACHER," an "ITINERANT PREACHER," and laſtly, by the "LAY PREACHER of Pennſylvania." In this numerous family, he does not recognize any relatives, except the gentleman laſt mentioned, whoſe productions occaſionally adorn this Gazette, and whoſe genius is of a higher deſtiny, than the ſervile track of Imitation. But, without cenſure of the firſt of theſe followers, or compliment to the laſt, there is now ſuch a confuſed multitude of theſe ſelf-created Divines that the Founder of the Sect deems it neceſſary to identify himſelf, and, in the capital of the United States, to hang out, as on a ſign, a name, by which, as the lawyers ſay, he may be known and impleaded. He will be pleaſed, if his old friends will continue to give him friendly greetings, and a candid hearing, and if they will good humouredly apply to him the following paſſage from DEAN SWIFT.

"All travellers at firſt incline
Where e'er they ſee the faireſt ſign;
And, if they find the chambers neat,
And like the liquor and the meat,
Will call again, and recommend
THE ANGEL INN to every friend.
What though the Painting grows decay'd
The houſe will never loſe its trade:
Nay, though the treacherous tapſter Thomas,
Hangs a new Angel, two doors from us,
As fine as Dauber's hands can make it,
In hopes that Strangers may miſtake it,
We think it both a ſhame and ſin,
To QUIT THE TRUE OLD ANGEL INN."

If the curioſity of Philadelphia can be kindled, and the patronage of an opulent city be gained, The Lay Preacher propoſes ſhortly to renew his ſermonizing ſtrain, and, once a week, publiſh, in the pamphlet-form, his own meditations, together with much and various literature, derived from original writers at home, or from the pureſt ſources abroad. Preparatory to the Proſpectus, or the publication of this work, it is proper to exhibit a few ſpecimens to thoſe, who are ſtrangers to the ſtile of its Editor. In this Gazette, and in a few ſucceeding ones, may be ſeen a ſample of his ſermons. Fortunate will it be for their author, if they receive the approbation of the LONDON of America. He will then find himſelf animated by new hopes, and invigorated to higher exertion.

"And Ittai anſwered the king, and ſaid, As the Lord liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, ſurely in what place my lord the king ſhall be, whether in death or life, even there alſo will thy ſervant be."

THE book of Samuel is crowded with intereſting narratives. The ſtory of the artifice and defection of Abſalom is full of incident, and exhibits a forcible moral. The clergy have ever found, in his revolt and its conſequences, a copious theme for grave remark, and pious meditation. STERNE, whoſe pen was a pencil, has grouped king David and his attendants, in conſternation and ſorrow, flying over the brook Cedron toward the way of the wilderneſs. The Lay Preacher, humbly gleaning after ſuch laborers, has picked up one incident pictureſque, pathetic, honorable to humanity. A portrait, that has ſuch features, merits an exhibition. From the Cabinet of the Bible then let it be produced; and, if placed in a good light, the rude man, as well as the connoiſſeur, will ſtyle it enchanting.

As a cover for fraud or violence, religious, perhaps more frequently than political pretexts, have been employed by the hypocrites of every age. Abſalom was too cunning an impoſter not to know that a ſhew of piety would be highly operative with his father David. Anxious to ſet up the ſtandard of rebellion in Hebron, a city of malcontents, the royal revolter prays that he might be permitted to go thither to pay his vows. The credulous king conſents. Abſalom is attended with the uſual crowd, ſtudious of change and confuſion. Some of thoſe counſellers, in whoſe loyalty the king probably repoſed intire confidence, abandon their duty and their ſovereign, and follow the fortunes of the uſurper. The dark plot thickens. The conſpirators increaſe. The mournful tidings of a ſon's criminality reach at length the afflicted Sire. The baleful cry of treaſon rang in the palace. The perturbated king urges the neceſſity of flight. He and his houſehold accordingly ſecede from the city. Intereſting fugitives! You were not the victims of common fear, you were not a diſordered rout, on the retreat from a chaſing conqueror; you were kind companions, and fellow mourners, and as you aſcended together the ſteep of Mount Olivet let fall "kindly drops, which pity had engendered."

Though it might be expected that thoſe, immediately about the perſon of David, whoſe affections he could eaſily engage, or whoſe obedience he could ſternly require, would be the partners of his flight, yet in ſuch a dubious hour, the ſtrangers at Jeruſalem, the wealthy, the politic, the timid would keep aloof, till more tranquil times ſhould come rouud again.

But Ittai, the Gittite, had ſuch a warm heart, that he never balanced in his cautious head the pros and cons of this ſelfiſh philoſophy.

This man did not linger a moment on the bank of the brook to conſider the hazard he ran, or the probability that he ſhould loſe his head, if Abſalom's banners proved victorious. The time ſerving Shimei made many a ſyllogiſm, in this prudent logic; Ittai's proceſs of reaſoning was more ſummary; for "he paſſed over, and all his men, and all the little ones that were with him."

Though a kingdom and a child's affections were faſt fading away before the ſight of David, and we might eaſily ſuppoſe him abſorbed in his calamities, he was not ſo ſunken in the trance of woe, not to remark the prompt fidelity of Ittai. But ſuch zeal, at ſuch a ſeaſon, and from ſuch a quarter, appeared enigmatical—"Wherefore goeſt thou alſo with us? For thou art a ſtranger, and alſo an exile. Whereas thou cameſt but yeſterday. Should I this day make thee go up and down with us? Seeing I go whither I may. Return thou and take back thy brethren: Mercy and truth be with thee."

Dr. CAMPBELL cenſures the paraphraſtical ſtyle, and the Lay Preacher is averſe to verboſity. The above addreſs of the king is ſo terſely expreſſed, that a little expanſion, though diminiſhing the force, may add to the perſpicuity of the paſſage.

Is it poſſible, Ittai, that you are one of my unfortunate aſſociates? How can you leave the delights of a city, for the way of the wilderneſs, and prefer danger with me to future honours from Abſalom? You are a ſtranger, how careſt thou then for Jeruſalem? you have been an exile, whence then thy nationality. Return thou good, but deluded man; why ſhouldeſt thou wander with David and tempt perdition. I am here deſolate and deſpiſed; ſoon, perhaps, to periſh by the ſteel, or, ſtill ſharper, the ingratitude of a child. I deſperately fly, I know not where. But let not thy raſh loyalty trace my perplexed paths. For thy zeal receive—my heart. But leave me, and make thy peace with the uſurper. May Mercy plead with him thy forgiveneſs. May Truth atteſt thy virtue.

To ſo noble a friend and faithful follower ſuch a remonſtrance would add conſtancy. Tell Ittai of danger and he half unſheathes his ſword. He prefers hazardous allegiance to criminal ſubmiſſion, and would rather, with bare and bleeding feet go up the aſcent of Olivet, than be captain of the hoſt at ſeditious Hebron.

Survey, my readers, this grand hiſtorical picture, deſigned by a great maſter—a prophet. It is more glowing than the canvas of RUBENS, more ſublime than the cartoons of RAPHAEL—It is the portrait of a Friend in adverſity.

President's Replication to the Senate.

Gentlemen of the Senate,

I THANK you for this Addreſs. I wiſh you all poſſible ſucceſs and ſatisfaction in your deliberations on the means which have a tendency to promote and extend our national intereſts and happineſs—and I aſſure you, that in all your meaſures, directed to thoſe great objects, you may at all times rely with the higheſt confidence on my cordial co-operation.

The praiſe of the Senate ſo judiciouſly conferred on the promptitude and zeal of the troops, called to ſuppreſs the inſurrection, as it falls from ſo high authority, muſt make a deep impreſſion, both as a terror to the diſobedient and an encouragement to ſuch as do well.

JOHN ADAMS.

United States,
December 10, 1799.

To the House.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives.

THIS very reſpectful Addreſs from the Repreſentatives of the people of the United States, at their firſt aſſembly, after a freſh election, under the ſtrong impreſſion of the public opinion and national ſenſe, at this intereſting and ſingular criſis of our public affairs, has excited my ſenſibility and receives my ſincere and grateful acknowledgments.

As long as we can maintain with harmony and affection, the honor of our country, conſiſtently with its peace, externally and internally, while that is attainable, or in war, when that becomes neceſſary—aſſert its real independence and ſovereignty, and ſupport the conſtitutional energies and dignity of its government—we may be perfectly ſure under the ſmiles of Divine Providence, that we ſhall effectually promote and extend our national intereſts and happineſs.

The applauſe of the Senate and Houſe of Repreſentatives, ſo juſtly beſtowed upon the volunteers and militia, for their zealous and active co-operation with the judicial power, which has reſtored order and ſubmiſſion to the laws, as it comes with peculiar weight and propriety from the legiſlature, cannot fail to have an extenſive and permanent effect, for the ſupport of government, upon all thoſe ingenuous minds, who receive delight from the approving and animating voice of their country.

JOHN ADAMS.

United States,
December 10, 1799.

BALTIMORE, December 10.

By the arrival of Capt. Foſter, from St. Jago, in 20 days, we are favoured with the following:

On the 5th November, the Boſton Frigate, capt. Little, chaſed on ſhore a French Ship called the Egyptian, mounting 40 braſs guns, and carrying 250 men, and on the 7th, took a ſmall lugger, with ſwivels and muſkets, carrying 30 men.

NORFOLK, Dec. 3.

THE LAUNCH.

Yeſterday at half paſt one o'clock, in the preſence of a great concourſe of people; was ſafely launched into her element the United States frigate Cheſapeake, of 44 guns, commanded by Samuel Barron Eſq.

Every preparation was made for launching this ſhip the preceding day, but the tallow on her ways being frozen, and the weather extremely cold, the conſtructor, Mr. Fox, after having knocked away her ſhores, and the blocks being removed from under her, finding ſhe ſtarted and went a few feet but ſlowly, thought it moſt prudent to ſecure the ſhip and wait a more favorable opportunity (eſpecially as ſhe had to go over ſome new made ground) which yeſterday preſented, when at the intended moment ſhe glided into ſix fathom water.

The Cheſapeake's keel was laid on the 10th day of December laſt; 265 working days only have been taken to complete her, and the number of carpenters that received full pay has never exceed twenty.

As to the mould, ſtrength and beauty, of this frigate, we ſhall not be afraid to have even the eye of prejudice to paſs on them its judgment.

A COMPENDIOUS SYSTEM

Of Practical Surveying and dividing of land; briefly comprized under the following heads, viz.

TWENTY-THREE Geometrical Definitions, eleven Geometrical Positions, exhibiting to view the properties and dependencies of triangles; followed by problems and examples preparatory to Trigonometry, heights and distances. Then fifteen problems and examples neceſſarily previous to calculating a Survey ſucceeded by ſeven ſurveys, the area of the four firſt is found geometrically, and of the whole number by difference of latitude and departure, ſhewing how to take an inacceſſible boundary, find the bearing and diſtance of the cloſing line without running it, alſo the diſtances to an inacceſſible corner from the two adjacent corners, followed by examples of offſets on to winding ſtreams of water, ſhewing how to aſcertain the area without the trouble of meaſuring the windings with chains and inſtruments—a crooked water courſe ſtraitened, and a quantity of land on each ſide found by theſe offſets.

Ten examples of dividing land, with many ſub-diviſions, leading into the moſt critical circumſtances that can occur in practice; an example of Interſections, and an example ſhewing how the bearings of a field may be truly taken where the needle is attracted, altho' the attraction may vary in quantity and denomination at every ſtation; examples ſhewing the method of meaſuring by the chain only. All the rules are clear and explicit. This work contains the tables of difference of latitude and departure and of logarithms.

Orders ſent to Joſeph and James Cruckſhank, Bookſellers, No. 87, High-ſtreet, Philadelphia, Bonſall and Niles, 173, Market Street, Baltimore, or the Subſcriber in Wilmington (Del.) will be duly attended to.

TERMS

Of Richard Folwell, in Philadelphia,

FOR SUBSCRIBING TO THE

JOURNALS OF CONGRESS,

FROM THE COMMENCEMENT

Of the American War, in 1774, to the present time,

INCLUDING

The Reports of Heads of Departments, of Committees, and other Official and Private Papers of that Body, now first permitted to be made public.

TERMS.

THE work will be printed on a fine paper, and a new neat tipe, in large octavo.

Each volume will contain above 500 pages, neatly bound and lettered.

Uniformity in ſize, paper, and binding, will be obſerved throughout the work; ſo that, while the ſubſcribers become poſſeſſed of a valuable record, an ornament may be added to their libraries.

The price to ſubſcribers will be 2 dolls. 75 cts. per volume, in boards, and 3 dolls. whole bound, but, as the publiſher does not intend to print manmore than the number ſubſcribed for, a conſiderable riſe on the price may be expected to non-ſubſcribers.

Each volume will contain about one third leſs of letter-preſs than the original edition; but, as the publiſher is not yet enabled to determine the extent of the Private Journals, which he may be allowed to make public, he cannot aſcertain the number of volumes which will compriſe the work.

☞ Payments to be made on delivery of each volume.

Subſcribers will have it at their option, either to ſubſcribe for the whole of the Journals, up to the preſent time, or to thoſe only of the Old Congreſs prior to the organization of the Federal Government.

IN all countries, the proceedings in the commencement of their governments, are loſt in darkneſs and obſcurity, owing to a careleſsneſs, in the ſucceeding generation, to preſerve the public records, and the attention of the nation, in thoſe rude ages, being called off from their domeſtic concerns, to engage in wars and conqueſt. Of what infinite value would the laws of Alfred be, had they been tranſmitted to our days? Time, that deſtroys every thing, enhances the value of well authenticated public records, and renders them almoſt inеſtimable. It is hoped, that Americans will, therefore, chearfully contribute their aſſiſtance in tranſmitting to poſterity the labours of their anceſtors—founders of the Columbian nation.

 The work will certainly be advanced with expedition and promptitude. The following will ſhow the ſupport it has already acquired:

"Reſpectfully ſheweth,

"That having, in our reſpective avocations, frequent occaſion to recur to the Journals of Congreſs, we experience inconvenience by the ſcarcity of them: That we underſtand that Richard Folwell, printer, of Philadelphia, has had it in contemplation to print that public record; and that he hath obtained partial countenance from many individuals; but that he has delayed proſecuting the work, in expectation of encouragement from government, that may adequately indemnify him. We, therefore, reſpectfully ſolicit, as the publication is neceſſary to be diſſeminated among public bodies that Congreſs will, in their wiſdom render him ſuch additional encouragement, to that which he has obtained from private individuals, as to enable him to proceed with the work, ſo that your Memorialiſts may be enabled to purchaſe copies of that record for themſelves.

The Swift-Sure,

A NEW LINE OF STAGES,

NOW RUNNING BETWEEN

PHILADELPHIA & NEW-YORK,

By the ſhort and pleaſant road of Buſſleton, Newtown, Scotch Plains, Springfield and Newark.

THE excellence of this road, the populouſneſs of the country through which it paſſes, with ſundry other advantages, which render it ſo far preferable to the Old Road through Briſtol, Brunſwick, &c. long ago ſuggeſted the propriety of its becoming the Grand Thorough Fare from Philadelphia to New York. During the preſent year, a minute ſurvey of it has been taken, and its ſuperiority over the Old Road, both in winter and ſummer, has been clearly aſcertained.—There are good bridges over all the other waters but the Delaware, and here the croſſing is performed with great ſafety and in leſs than half the time required at the Trenton Ferry. The road is ſeveral miles ſhorter than the old road, but this is amongſt the leaſt of its advantages, becauſe daily experience proves to us, that diſpatch as well as comfort in traveling principally depend on the goodneſs of the road and the levelneſs of the country, and, in theſe reſpects, the New Road is, beyond all compariſon, the beſt. It preſents none of thoſe rocky hills, which render the Old Road ſo fatiguing between the Delaware and Newark. The ſoil, too, for the greater part, is ſuch as to produce but little mud in winter, and very little duſt in ſummer, which circumſtance, added to the beauty of the country, and a conſiderable proportion of ſhade, muſt always render traveling in the latter ſeaſon peculiarly agreeable.

The Swift Sure ſtarts from PHILADELPHIA, at 6 o'clock every morning (Sundays excepted) from the GREEN TREE, oppoſite the Lutheran Church, North Fourth ſtreet. It goes through Frankford to Buſtleton, where it ſtops to Breakfaſt; from Buſtletown it goes through Newtown to Penny-town to dinner; from Penny-town through Hopewell, Milliſtone, Bound-brook, Quibbletown and Plainfield to Scotch Plains to lodge. The next morning it ſtops at Springfield to breakfaſt, from whence it goes through Newark and arrives at New-York at noon.

From NEW-YORK it ſtarts at 3 o'clock in the afternoon (from Paulus Hook) and arrives at Philadelphia the next evening. For ſeats at New-York, application may be made to Edward Bardin, Old Coffee houſe, to A. Mathieu, corner of Naſſau and John ſtreets, to B. Many, no. 48, Courtlandt, corner of Greenwich ſtreet, and to Michael Little, at his hotel, no. 42, Broad ſtreet.

Fare for paſſengers, Five Dollars.
Way paſſengers 6 Cents per Mile.

Each paſſenger is allowed to take on 14lbs. of baggage carriage free; but all other baggage, taken on by a paſſenger, will be charged at 4 cents per pound weight.

With reſpect to packages ſent on without paſſengers, the proprietors preſume they have adopted a regulation, which, though unknown to other lines of ſtages, they think muſt meet with general approbation, They pledge themſelves to make good every package on the following conditions. The perſon who delivers the package at the office ſhall ſee it entered in the ſtage-book, for which entry he ſhall pay 6 cents; he will then ſtate the value of the package, and pay (excluſive of the carriage) one per cent. on the value, as inſurance, and for which he will receive a receipt. Thus, for inſtance, if he eſtimates his package at one dollar, he will pay one cent. and if at one hundred dollars, he will pay one dollar inſurance, and in like proportion for packages of any other value.

Very few perſons it is preſumed, will diſlike this regulation; it will however, be optionable with every one to avail himſelf of this ſecurity or not. But the proprietors think it right to ſtate very expliaitly, that they will be reſponſible for the ſafe delivery of no package, which is not regularly entered, and for which an inſurance receipt cannot be produced.

In the diſtribution of the route, the greateſt care has bren taken to fix on ſuch places and taverns as always afford a good accommodation and entertainment for the paſſengers at the moſt reaſonable rates The ſtages are well equipped furniſhed with fleet and ſteady horſes, and committed to the care of intelligent ſober and obliging drivers. The proprietors themſelves live at the different towns and villages where the ſtages will ſtop, ſo that the conduct of the perſons they employ is continually an object of their attention.—They take care alſo to ſee that the paſſengers are well provided for and politely treated at the taverns, and that no ſort of chicanery or inſolence is practiſed upon them; in ſhort, they have ſpared neither pains nor expence to render the SWIFT-SURE the very beſt line of ſtages in America.

The line has now run nearly a month, during which time a great number of gentlemen have gone through, both from Philadelphia and New-York. Every paſſenger has found the road to ſurpaſs very far all that has been ſaid of its excellence; and the Proprietors of the Swift Sure are extremely happy to hear the behaviou of their drivers, and the treatment at Taverns ſpoken of with the higheſt ſatisfaction.
